

I Witness News again here reporting, Jesus gone but not forgotten. Today we have been allowed to join several of His closest friends as they bid farewell to Jesus. Actually I am told it is not a "farewell", but a "till we meet again". His followers have been enjoying His company since resurrection day. He has been able to teach them truths that they were blind to before His death. It is amazing to watch the growth in these people as they really listened to what Jesus was sharing. I'm sure they were listening before, but now it takes on a whole different meaning. A couple of angels have just told them to stop looking at the sky and get to work telling everyone about Jesus. Oh, they were also supposed to go to the place where He shared His last meal with them. They were to wait there until The Holy Spirit came to join them. This reporter will be watching for The Holy Spirit too. I can hardly wait to see what He does. This plan of God's gets more exciting every day!
